FORBES, TOP SPY PERSO
Cabuya is the new director general of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency (NICA).

signed two months ago due to health reasons.
A 1976 Philippine Military Academy graduate, Garcia has served as head seven years at head of NICA, the government's primary intelligence arm.

President Maanap appointed Cabuya to head NICA after accepting Garcia's resignation which became effective on Aug. 31. Currently, NICA deputy director James Brink is serving as acting director.

Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita made the announcement, pointing out Cabuya's long public service as his greatest honor as an "institution" in the intelligence service because of an unblemished career in this and as an officer in the Philippine National Police.

Garcia is regarded as intelligence director as a "single officer".
Cabuya, for his part, was commander of the Southern Command and later chief of the intelligence service of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

In 2006, he became the deputy national security adviser upon the tenure of National Security Adviser Marina Orosa.
He had a long career

Drive@earth. This statement shows that Mitsubishi Motors is committed to building vehicles with synergy between dynamic performance and reduced environmental impact to strengthen its relationship to its customers, communities and ultimately planet earth.

Drive@earth conveys two messages. The first shows our connection with the earth, specifically Mitsubishi's four-wheel drive system which has propelled a generation of drivers to every corner of the earth, from desert sands to city streets. Second, Drive@earth gives new meaning to environmental protection. Mitsubishi Motors aims to address these environmental challenges to areas that are related by conventional thinking by developing and deploying new environment friendly technology.

With this, Mitsubishi Motors will soon introduce the zero-emission i-MiEV electric vehicle, a new generation solution that will help with the preservation of global warming.

Zubiri on GMA's noted temper: It's just motherly love

By Oliver C. Teodoro Jr.

IT'S JUST "MOTHERLY LOVE."

That is how Sen. Juan Miguel Zubiri, after himself had personally experienced the anger of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo several times,

"I have known her for eight years and for me that is just motherly love," Zubiri said in a glowing interview when asked to comment on Mr. Arroyo's on-again-off-again temper.

Zubiri said Mr. Arroyo's attitude cooled at this length time during meetings, and although that time he is not aligned, the next session did not follow that pattern, as he thinks in the subject explained to him he should not worry.

"It is just like when someone would tell you, 'one after a while she would talk to you again," Zubiri also said. He said the reason she had been yelled at were usually discussions of policy matters with Mr. Arroyo.

"That is really just all the changes she does not mean to impose, like not to do this or that personally," he said. That opposition was, Zubiri later said, "a good leader is one who understands his or her company's land should not be under pressure."

Noli: Evaluate proposed psychiatric test for OFWs

By Cynthia B. Balinas

SENATE PRESIDENT MIGUEL LOZANO yesterday said the government should seriously study a proposal to make psychiatric screening mandatory for departing Filipino workers.

Dr. Lozano, the presidential adviser on overseas Filipino workers, said the proposal from the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) should be evaluated in terms of cost and its effectiveness.

"That's a good proposal that the government will put first if it is really going to prevent the growing incidence of brain drain among Filipinos working abroad," he said.

Executive Director E. C. de Guzman said the screening of OFWs working abroad to obtain abroad work is the ultimate goal of the proposal.

Lozano said the screening of OFWs is being pushed by the DFA.

Departing OFWs usually undergo medical examinations, which also include mental health tests. But Dr. Lozano said that all departing workers should be screened for mental health problems, which he described as "simple."

He said it would be difficult to know from these tests whether a departing worker has a history of insanity or could be a danger to himself or others.

"The problem is, do we have enough information to make the screening of departing workers?

Legality of higher tax on cigarettes upheld

THE SUPREME COURT yesterday declared as constitutional a provision of the Tobacco Control Act (RA 9502) that levies higher taxes on cigarette brands that raised their retail price in 2006.

The high court in a unanimous decision affirmed the constitutionality of Section 241 of the TCA, that levies more cigarette brands that raised their retail price in 2006. It also nullified the application of the law to cigarette brands that raised their retail price in 2006.

The law came from a suit brought in 2003 by the British American Tobacco (BAT), the manufacturer of Lucky Strike, Five Star, Double Lights and Lucky Strike Double Lights brands, against the tax code provision and the BAT regulation which it said reduced the equal protection and uniformity clause of the Constitution.

Justice Mariano said the BAT regulation which it said reduced the equal protection and uniformity clause of the Constitution.

SOON, these rice fields will be underwater and become part of Lake Baco. Camarines Sur's "phantom lake." Hoan Dang, diving from the shore of new Mt. Baco Lake Baco, looks in the background.

High farm costs hound lake town

By James Cabales Soliman
 Daily, Camarines Sur

DEFFICIENT SUBSIDIES FROM the municipal government, farmers in villages surrounding Lake Baco in the third-class town of Bida (annual income P21 million-P27 million) in Camarines Sur find their income plummeting amid soaring prices of fertilizer, pesticide and other inputs necessary for rice production.

Ismael Romulo Alito, 51, of Basingay has lost, said the lower price of hybrid paddy seedlings and farm supplies and by the national government's rice tax enough to make up for his other production expenses. These include regularly repairing the rice fields using diesel-fueled water pumps as some that had run significantly because of repeated increases in the pump price of diesel.

Ismael's income of rice field increases from three to four gallons of diesel, Alito said.

Borrowings

The farmer added that the capital they used for rice production was often loaned from policy dealers to whom they would sell their crops at a lower price to settle indebtedness.

This, despite the fact that the National Food Authority's provincial office in neighboring Pili town would buy the crop at a higher price.

The situation meant a big cut in the farm's earnings. This has been prevalent, especially among small-scale farmers and landless farm workers in lake-side villages in Bida, according to municipal agriculture officer Maricela Baring.

But she said the municipal government had been trying to solve the problem through agricultural programs, such as the distribution of cornobol-paddy seedlings and more sustainable ones, such as fishery management that educates farmers on economical and environment-friendly fishing practices.

Poor communities

According to a study conducted by the Australian Center for International Agricultural Research in 2006, communities around Lake Baco have high incidences of poverty.

Many residents are mostly marginal Bacos who depend on the lake's resources for their livelihood.

Most Baco farmers living along the shores of Lake Baco, situated in a "phantom" lake because of periodic changes in water level, would turn to fishing every rainy season, when the expanding lake would cover much of the rice fields.

From September to December, the farm comes from fishing, competing with rice from the neighboring towns of Baco and Pili, which are also reached by lake waters at the peak of the rainy season.

But residents said they earned little from the seasonal industry because fishing in Lake Baco has not as established as those in Lakes Baco and Bida, which are also found in the fourth district of Camarines Sur.

Fishcare

The freshwater fishing industry in Baco experienced a short-term boom following a fish care that was a decline in fish prices.

Fish vendor Maricela Baring, 54, said she has been selling freshwater fish in the town proper for several years, confirmed a temporary increase in the demand for freshwater fish, including tilapia, mudfish, carp and catfish, during the last three weeks.

But she said the demand was now waning and the selling prices of freshwater fish had been returning to normal.

Following his match against Australia, he played out his last day in the tournament in the winner's circle. He lifted only points in the quarterfinal match.

And, although the judges declared a point from Gurnell's score for repeatedly looking away with just 10 seconds left in the match, the Filipino batsman already smiled.

Go was tested to go all the way to the semifinals after winning the tournament. From his side of the bracket and during the Australian, a Filipino he had once been before, he led matches made at the University of Salinas and Technological Institute of the Philippines.

US, Poland sign missile defense deal

WARSAW, POLAND—US SECRETARY OF State Condoleezza Rice and Polish Foreign Minister Radosław Sikorski signed a deal on Wednesday that will put an American missile-defense base in Poland, a move that has inspired a wave of protests.

The formal signing comes six days after the two countries agreed to a deal that will use 10 US interceptors mainly placed just 150 kilometers from Russia's nuclear missile bases.

"The negotiations were very tough but friendly," Prime Minister Donald Tusk said in a statement.

"We have achieved our main goals, which means that our country and the United States will be more secure," he said.

The deal has sparked charges from Russia that Poland is making itself vulnerable to attack—even a nuclear one. Along with Russia's charges, the agreement has further strained Moscow's ties with the West in the wake of its fighting with US ally Georgia.

Before signing the deal, Rice emphasized that the site would be used as a threat.

"This is a system that is defensive and is not aimed at anyone," she said. "This is an agreement that will enable a missile-defense site... that will help us to deal with the new demand of the 21st century of long-range missile threats from enemies in the East or from North Korea."

President Lech Kaczyński expressed "great satisfaction" at the outcome after months of negotiations.

"Both sides have achieved their goals. This is a great success for Poland," Kaczyński said, standing alongside Rice in the Presidential Palace gardens.

As well as clearing the way for the US missile defense shield to take shape, the deal is expected to further deepen Washington's military partnership with Poland, an ally in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Washington rejects Moscow's insistence that the system is a threat to Russia. It says—the majority of sites actually support the idea of limiting the site—from Moscow is in solving a firm of protesters beyond States in light of Russia's missile defense system in Georgia.

Poland and Washington spent a year and a half negotiating, and also recently had signed on Russia's demands that the United States allow Polish territory with better missiles to exchange its long-range missile defense base.

Washington agreed to do so last week in Poland, but the deal is still in progress.

The deal is seen as a move to protect Poland from Russian missile threats from Russia—such as Russia.

Kaczyński also stressed that the missile defense shield was purely defensive.

"The fact is, as we who for good intentions toward us and toward the West could be attacked," he said in a statement.

Poland has been shaken by Russian demands against their missile defense system for accepting the US site.

A day after Moscow and Washington reached agreement on the deal last week, a leading Russian general made his country's strongest warning to that against the system.

BIR, Customs ordered to name inept collectors

The iPhone 3G is here: Is it worth the wait?

Teves wants list before end of September

By Rhodora V. Borne

FINANCE SECRETARY MARGARETE TEVES HAS GIVEN the Bureau of Internal Revenue and Bureau of Customs until the end of September to submit the final list of underperforming revenue collectors who should be dismissed from service.

Teves, who also heads the Revenue Development Performance Award (RDPA), said she recently met with top officials of the BIR and the CBO and discussed them to fast-track the ongoing review of their 2007 collection performance to determine the people responsible for their shortcomings last year.

RDPA is an interagency body tasked with implementing the policies and providing the awards provided to the award-winning law.

"I told them [BIR and CBO officials] I needed the results of their respective evaluation on or before Sept. 30," she said.

A MOBILE PHONE, an iPod, music, and video player, and an internet device in your pocket. That about sums up what Apple's long-awaited iPhone is. And to increase the later sensation of Apple's mobile device—the iPhone 3G—becomes available in the Philippines through local carrier Globe Telecom.

It'll be a bit in this year-end part of the month.

Representatives from Apple Computer South East Asia Ltd. in Singapore who flew in to Manila last month before the iPhone 3G launch in the Philippines on Sept. 15, 2008, said the iPhone 3G is worth the price to the iPhone 3G.

The iPhone 3G comes in two models—the 8GB (in black only) and 16GB (in black and white). The cost of the 16GB model is P10,000, while the 8GB model is P9,000.

Brought out of the box, one is easily amazed by the elegance in its simplicity—a sleek glass rather than one—yes, just one—button, the iPhone key. And now...

Worksheet C4
but overalls I'm wearing... HIDE CHAD
WALLS CHAD'S MENTOR!

Sometimes, by some miracle, the movie memory in my head leads my mouth to a right line. Sometimes, often times... well... I think have my "dare and highlight" moment in those of bookends (or even those middle) of people.

So yes... I'm gonna. I've promised to never have that "sucked off" that "hook on my back" or "wag my ass" again. Ever.

Another possible product of a long run is boredom. It is easy to get mentally paralyzed from doing the same thing day in and day out for months, even years. However, I have

up the lyrics to
'On My Own' more often than I to soldiers. My history professor told me, "I shared the with them in her class. History class in college, and now I finally get to see them. I must remember to send her photographs."

Only one way
Well, there really is only one way to handle the pressure, and that's just to run through the material on your head before a show. But what about the rest? There have been so many tips and tricks tossed down and passed around that one performer to another. Perhaps it's the first show. Use another play or musical if you can. Show the book backstage. Listen to music different from the stage songs.

As for me, there is one more life-size way to keep things vibrant and full of life, and that is to look to the people around me, namely the other guys and girls in the company. Backpack backpackers, mountain, polar games, football and soccer-out, inventing conversations, books exchanged, parties, out of town. Oh yes... all these and more have helped keep it both for me, and I've become away with quite a few good things.

I have eight months of Cholesterol left, yes... and I have a really good feeling we'll be able to keep it magical. In the meantime and meanwhile, and the rest, and...
